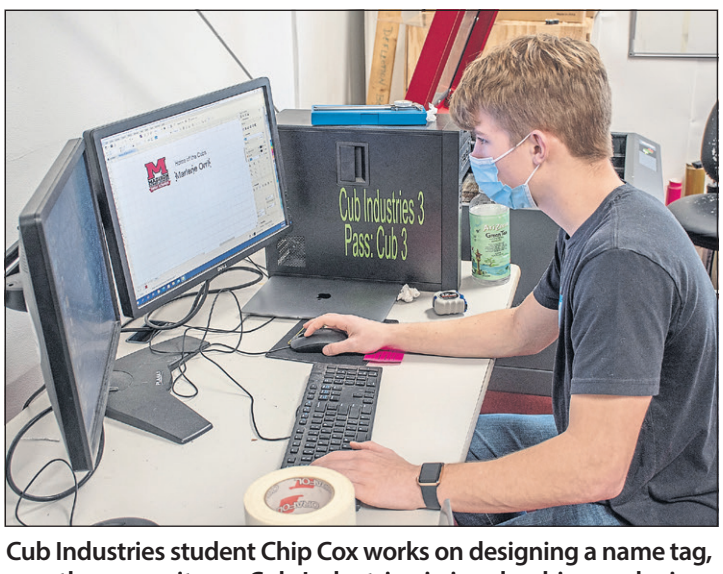
MCHS program to share profits from products

BY BOB DEMAREE

A milestone was achieved last week for Madison Consolidated High School's Cub Industries when the student-run business began producing a line item for Royer Corporation, creating a revenue stream for the first time in its goal toward becoming self-sustaining.

A Radian laser system was donated by Royer to Cub Industries to be used to create the product by engraving and shaping according to the company's design. The most current project involves 2022 cake toppers, but they will be producing other types of event planning décor — using the custom plastic injection molder to create beverage stirrers, picks, coasters and a variety of other decorator items — to be sold on Royer's Amazon online market with profits shared between Cub Industries and Royer Corporation.



Cub Industries student Chip Cox works on designing a name tag, one the many items Cub Industries is involved in producing, along with the new product line students are making for Royer Corporation.

Cub Enterprise Coordinator Whitney Mathews said the partnership with Royer came from discussions last summer and she said "they were very receptive" to it. "That was great for us because they jumped in and put a lot of faith into us developing this and they've been great to work with."

Cub Industries is a combination of Cub Manufacturing, the student run business established in 2015, and Cub Engineering, the engineering and design aspect of the business established in 2017. Students in Cub Manufacturing perform duties and oversee all functional aspects of the business — marketing, finance, logistics, production and more. Students in Cub Engineering work hand-in-hand with the production team from design, prototype, quality testing and production to ensure a quality product.

Cub Manufacturing and Cub Engineering were originally created separately, but merged into Cub Industries to create the industry-based program, which Ashley Schutte, Madison Consolidated Schools communications coordinator, said creates "more of a real-world setting" in which they work well together in pulling together the design and the production of products. Cub Engineering creates the product designs which are then sent over to Cub Manufacturing to make the product. Ryan Lamb is the Cub Manufacturing program leader which Derek Herrick the Cub Engineering program leader.

Schutte said that since the beginning, Cub Industries has worked with many community business partners that have

Redevelopment OKs funding to equip school program

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison's Redevelopment Commission approved a request for classroom and lab equipment for Cub Industries at its meeting Thursday to support the work-based learning program operated by Madison Consolidated High School students.

The board approved a request for $32,480 — $10,856 going to classroom equipment and $21,624 for lab equipment — after hearing a presentation by MCHS students Matthew Burkhardt, Chip Cox and Neel Mistry, who are all involved with Cub Manufacturing.

Prior to approving the appropriation, there were questions from the Redevelopment Commission about the funding mechanism for Cub Manufacturing.

Derek Herrick, who oversees the engineering department of Cub Industries, said there are course fees for equipment directly for students that they take home but most of those fees are paid by SuperATV. However, other equipment not included in that is also needed and that's where the Redevelopment Commission can help. He said the program is also funding itself with money coming from sponsorships and profits from products students create.

"We try to be solely sustaining on that," Herrick said.

He said the plan is to expand Cub Industries to be self-sustaining and "hopefully in the future we will not have to ask for this" if Cub Manufacturing can be totally self-sufficient by showing a profit. He mentioned a new parnership with Royer Manufacturing that began this week as a situation where Cub Manufacturing will share in profits.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney noted it is common across the state for TIF districts to support the school system in a variety of ways.

"I'm in favor of this because in the two years I've been on the Redevelopment Commission I don't think we've funded any material amounts, and I like to make the investment in our youth and it is staying local," Courtney said. "Also, there are great learning experiences happening here in regards to the work and the product and the engineering and manufacturing. I'm happy to see how Cub Manufacturing has evolved."

Courtney commended the partnerships Cub Industries has formed with local industries.

MCHS Principal Michael Gasaway said the most recent request from Cub Industries to the Redevelopment Commission was for $90,000 four years ago.

Tornadoes kill dozens, others left without power, heat

BY BRUCE SCHREINER AND DYLAN LOVAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MAYFIELD, Ky. — Residents of a Kentucky town devastated by a tornado could be without heat, water and electricity in chilly temperatures for a long time, the mayor warned Monday, as officials struggled to restore services after a swarm of twisters leveled neighborhoods and killed dozens of people in five states.

Authorities are still tallying the devastation from Friday night's storms, though they believe the death toll will be lower than initially feared since it appeared many more people escaped a candle factory in Mayfield, Kentucky, than first thought.

"This is a tough morning ... but it's ok, we're still going to be all right," Mayfield Mayor Kathy Stewart O'Nan said on "CBS Mornings."

But those who survived faced highs in the 50s and a low below freezing Monday without any utilities.

County BZA OKs home, discusses building lots in Saluda Township

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County's Board of Zoning Appeals approved an application allowing a home to be built in Madison Township and held an informal discussion on a plan to border a farm in Saluda Township with building lots at its meeting last week.

Cliff and Alicia Davis, sought a variance to allow construction a home at 3537 North Jefferson Lake in Madison Township with a 55-foot setback from the center of the road instead of the required 90 feet to build a 60-foot by 40-foot home.

Cliff Davis said they originally intended to locate the house farther back into the woods but now want to build away from the woods for safety reasons.

"That's where we presumed we were to build to begin with, but after the last few seasons and all the gunfire, we thought we'd want to go up closer to the road," said Davis.

After measuring from the center of the road back into their lot the 90-foot setback would extend into a ravine that"-drops off tremendously."

The board approved the smaller setback with conditions that two parcels owned by Davis be combined to meet lot size requirements.

In business at the Jefferson County Plan Commission, Paul Voris came before the Commission to discuss a 192.52-acre tract located at 4580 South 400W in Saluda Township, where there is interest in developing building lots along the sides of a farm.

According to Voris, Monday was an informal introduction ahead of possibly a more formal advisory meeting if he considers moving forward with plans to develop the land.

Plan Commission President Warren Auxier said developing the building lots the way Voris suggested could take years but that other options could required subdividing and development of infrastructure.

"If you're breaking lots off, you can only break off one lot a year without it being considered a subdivision of the entire property," Auxier said, explaining that if Voris wants to do a subdivision of the entire property or a portion of the property, the county's ordinance states the lots must be served by internal roads within the subdivision and not directly access county roads with the exception of lots that are 20 acres or more.

The Plan Commission also discussed ongoing efforts to clean up property owned by Lewis Handlon at 10218 West Polk Road, Lexington, in Republican Township, agreeing to give Handlon 30 days final notice before taking final action.

Handlon had appeared at the last two Plan Commission meetings, but was not at Tuesday's meeting. Building and Zoning Inspector Josh Cline observed the property on Monday and reported that no progress has been made.

Monday's Board of Zoning Appeals meeting was the last for members Virginia Franks and Mike Shelton while the Plan Commission meeting was the last for Franks.

The Plan Commission chose to recommend Lisa Hammock to the Jefferson County Commissioners as a new appointee to replace Franks. Franks had also served as a Plan Commission appointee to the BZA, and the Plan Commission voted Jenny Beverly to be board's new appointee to BZA.

The Board of Zoning Appeals also discussed possible replacements for Shelton on the BZA, but did not reach a decision.

On his return, he attended the University of Illinois and met his future wife, Minnie Jane Jenkins, on a bus traveling back to school. They were united in marriage on February 10, 1948, in the home of Rev. and Mrs. C.B. Whiteside in St. Elmo, Illinois. She worked while he finished his degree in Electrical Engineering in 1949. He joined the Ohio Power Company and they moved to Steubenville, Ohio where their son, John was born. He gained experience there opening a new power plant, then joined Ohio Valley Electric Company to help with planning the new IKEC Clifty Creek Power Plant in Madison, Indiana. They moved to Hanover in 1953 to a house on Madison Avenue where they raised their family, which soon included daughter Nancy. Everett rose through the power plant organization and was named Plant Manager in 1967. He was particularly proud of the team response to the tornado in 1974. He retired as plant manager in 1986. He and Minnie traveled considerably, mostly in the United States, in a favored shiny black American-made car. Upon moving to Hanover, the family joined the Hanover United Methodist church and continued to actively support their programs. His faith led his approach to all things. Everett also was involved in various roles on the Madison-Jefferson County Library Board, the Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Madison Consolidated School Board, and the Madison Rotary Club. To quote him from an article in the Madison Courier at the time of his retirement: "Whatever success I've had I attribute to the employees who work here. You just couldn't ask for finer people. I've been blessed in more ways than I can understand". Everett died on Friday, December 10, 2021, at 8:38 a.m. at the Thornton Terrace Health Campus in Hanover, Indiana.

A LOVING FAMILY

Everett will be missed by his loving daughter, Nancy Schwarm Livesay of Las Vegas, Nevada. He was preceded in death by his parents, Forrest Everett and Sarah Mahon Schwarm, his beloved wife of 69 years, Minnie Jane Jenkins Schwarm, died March 25, 2017, his son, John W. Schwarm, died September 13, 2017.

TORNADOES

"Our infrastructure is so damaged. We have no running water. Our water tower was lost. Our wastewater management was lost, and there's no natural gas to the city. So we have nothing to rely on there," she told CBS. "So that is purely survival at this point for so many of our people."

Across the state, about 26,000 homes and businesses were without electricity, according to poweroutage.us, including nearly all of those in Mayfield.

Kentucky was the worst-hit by far in the cluster of twisters across several states, remarkable because they came at a time of year when cold weather normally limits tornadoes. At least 64 people died in the state, Gov. Andy Beshear said Monday. There were at least another 14 deaths in Illinois, Tennessee, Arkansas and Missouri.

Authorities are still trying to pin down the full death toll, and the storms made door-to-door searches impossible in some places. "There are no doors," said Beshear.

"We're going to have over 1,000 homes that are gone, just gone," he said.

Over the weekend, Beshear had said that the state's toll could exceed 100 — but he scaled that back after it appeared fewer people died in the candle factory than first thought.

Initially as many as 70 people were feared dead in the factory, but the company said Sunday that eight deaths were confirmed and eight remained missing, while more than 90 others had been located.

Ohio Valley Aerial

The devastation in Mayfield, Kentucky, at first light on Saturday after multiple tornadoes tore through parts of the lower midwest.

"Many of the employees were gathered in the tornado shelter and after the storm was over they left the plant and went to their homes," said Bob Ferguson, a spokesman for the company. "With the power out and no landline they were hard to reach initially. We're hoping to find more of those eight unaccounted as we try their home residences."

Debris from destroyed buildings and shredded trees covered the ground in Mayfield, a city of about 10,000 in western Kentucky. Twisted sheet metal, downed power lines and wrecked vehicles lined the streets. Windows were blown out and roofs torn off the buildings that were still standing.

Firefighters in the town had to rip the doors off the fire station to get vehicles out, according to Fire Chief Jeremy Creason on "CBS Mornings."

"Words cannot describe the bravery, the selflessness that they've exhibited," he said of his employees. "We had to try and navigate through all the debris up and down our streets. We were responding with ambulances with three and four flat tires."

Downtown churches were heavily damaged or destroyed. The Rev. Joey Reed of First United Methodist Church told CBS that he was able to hold a worship service Sunday with a colleague at a different church after the tornado ripped through his. He said he and his wife were in the church as a wall collapsed and the ceiling caved in.

"Thanks be to God that the parts of the building that came down didn't come down on us," he said.

FUNDING

"To get to where we're self-sustained and not asking, we're getting to that point; it's just taking some time," Gasaway said, noting that with the Royer partnership they're closer to being there. "We started this in 2015, so we're still fairly new."

Board member Dan Hughes asked whether products to be purchased with Redevelopment funds will be purchased locally. Gasaway said while they "do love to stay in town with local vendors but we do get three quotes whenever we're purchasing equipment like that to make sure we're using the money wisely and getting the most we can out of our money." Additionally, it was noted that choices for purchases are made in conjunction with the local business partners that are on the Cub Industries advisory board.

The appropriation for the classroom equipment was approved by Redevelopment Commission members John Grote, Dan Hughes and Cary Strouse with board member Dr. Jeffrey Studebaker, who is superintendent of Madison Consolidated Schools, abstaining.

Changing diet changes relationship

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Last weekend, I got a text from my dad that said: "I'm going vegan LOL." (Yes, he says "LOL." He's hip like that.) I laughed and brushed it aside, but during dinner last night, he and my stepmom told me they are serious about it. It definitely took me by surprise, but I was supportive and excited about the idea, so much so that I even went with him to Barnes & Noble to pick out an awesome vegan cookbook. But since then, I've been having a strangely emotional reaction to his decision.

We love to eat. That's our "thing." We go out to dinner, try new, unusual cuisines and eat our way through new cities when traveling. He even seriously considered taking a leave from work to audition for a Food Network show. Some of my best memories involve meals we've shared. And now what? I'll order sashimi, and he'll have ... seaweed? I have no issue with the decision itself; I've done every juice cleanse and 30-day challenge under the sun — and I love me some seaweed. I actually find the choice quite admirable.

What I realized is that the child in me is afraid that a piece of our relationship will be lost. Through my parents' (nasty) divorce, no matter how things were between them or between us — no matter when new people came into the picture and old people left — whenever we sat down at the table, all of the yuckiness melted away. This feels like one more thread of consistency and connection being cut.

Are there any actions you suggest I take to move forward? — Herbivore Dilemma

Dear Herbivore Dilemma: You are clearly a thoughtful person to have such insight into your emotions and their roots. Perhaps this is the opportunity you've needed to express some long-held feelings. Talking through these concerns will bring you closer than ever. And with time, you'll find out that it was never about the food; it was about sitting down together.

Dear Annie: I have a weird question for you. I live in a Midwestern community that has expensive water and sewer costs. I also exercise every day, and as a result, I drink a lot of water — and I mean a lot of water. So when my wife is not home, I urinate in the bathroom sink. Then I wash my hands, which rinses the sink basin at the same time. This uses a fraction of the water that flushing the toilet would use. Multiply that by dozens of times a day and the savings are significant. Urine is sterile; the sink gets washed out afterward; and my hands are clean. What are your thoughts on my actions? — Sink Secret

Dear Sink Secret: I think you ought to knock it off. For one, urine isn't sterile; that's just a myth. For another, if you're really bent on saving water, there are plenty of ways to do so — such as installing a low-flush toilet — that don't require lying to your wife.

I've gotta take that

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have an old and close friend I've known for 50 years. We live far apart, and the only way to talk is by telephone.

Over the past several years, my friend has started to suddenly interrupt our calls when there is a click on the line signaling another call. He will announce midsentence that he has another call coming in that he has to take and then abruptly hang up. He interrupts himself this way as often as he does me. It happens virtually every time we talk, no matter what time it is.

I thought a solution to this might be to ask him to call me when it is convenient for him. That has not stopped this rudeness; he does this even when he has placed the call.

I am at my wits' end and cannot think of a solution short of writing off the friendship. This behavior is very much outside his normal character, which makes it all the more frustrating.

Any ideas on tactfully dealing with this problem? — I Wasn't Finished

Dear I Wasn't Finished: Don't write off the friendship before you've told your friend how you feel. You should at least let him know these abrupt goodbyes bother you and give him the chance to say his piece. This is a hunch, but is it possible you've not taken verbal cues — such as "Well, it's getting late" or "I should let you go" — that he'd like to end the call? He may be using call waiting as a quick way out. After all, with 50 years' worth of stories, I'm sure you two could talk for hours.

Dear Annie: I have read in your column numerous letters from families who, for various reasons, do not have any caring grandparents or other close relatives in their children's lives (for example, the recent letter from "Protective Husband"). My husband and I had the same problem.

Rather than see our children miss out on the benefits of having grandparents, we carefully observed older friends and neighbors and adopted "chosen" grandparents for our children. Whenever we moved, the process began again, to the benefit of both families. There were always many jobs that each family could do for the other. And the "grandparents" never felt that life was passing them by or that there was no one for them to call on when they needed help with minor repairs, yardwork, heavy lifting or technical problems that can perplex older minds.

Our chosen grandmother was a widow whose biological grandchildren lived in other states. I was finishing my bachelor's degree at the time, and she was truly a wonderful blessing to our family. She would ask what I was fixing for supper and then offer to cook it and eat with us and watch my youngest do his homework, all while I finished my assignments. She was a real saint who enabled me to have the time to study and graduate with honors. Then I became an award-winning schoolteacher for 39 years, which I might not have been able to do without her help decades before.

Please look around and choose carefully. And remember that all family members do not have to be biological relatives. — Blessed by My "Chosen" Family Members

Dear Blessed: It sounds as if she loved having your children in her life, too. What a wonderful idea.

Hargan home damaged by fire, smoke

Owner escaped without injury

BY BOB DEMAREE

A home in the 300 block of Hargan Drive sustained major fire and smoke damage in a fire reported on Sunday afternoon.

Madison Fire Department responded to an initial report of black smoke coming from the residence of Ruth Dixon, at approximately 3:25 p.m. on Sunday. The first arriving units advised that there was indeed a working structure fire and all occupants were confirmed to have safely exited the structure.

Heavy smoke billowed from the home for several minutes as firefighters attacked the blaze, which involved not only the house but a vehicle parked in the driveway as both the home and vehicle sustained major fire and smoke damage. In addition, the fire grew hot enough to cause some radiant heat damage to a nearby residence.

The cause of the fire is currently under investigation by Madison Fire Department.

In addition to the Madison Fire Department, other agencies responding to the scene included Madison Police Department, King's Daughters' Hospital EMS, Duke Energy and The Salvation Army.

Madison Fire Chief Bill DeVries reminded of the importance of working fire detectors in saving lives. He also informed about the "Close Before You Doze" program that focuses on straightforward actions and behavorial changes that can provide critical help in delaying the spread of fire. For information on the program, visit https://closeyourdoor.org/.

Humane Society to end spay/neuter support at JCAS

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The cost of adopting pets at the Jefferson County Animal Shelter will likely be more and shouldered more by the adopter beginning next year.

The JCAS Board was told last Wednesday that the local Humane Society will stop contributing $45 per animal to help cover costs for spaying and neutering pets adopted from the shelter.

Warren Auxier, president of the Humane Society and a member of the shelter board, said the Humane Society is getting so many calls for assistance that the decision was made to discontinue the spay/neuter support program at the end of this year, meaning the cost of adoption is likely to increase by $45 dollars after support ends by the animals rights group.

Auxier said the decision is unfortunate, especially considering the county's current population problems involving cats. Auxier, animal shelter staff and an animal control officer all said cats are overpopulating the county and without spay and neuter, controlling that growth could be unmanageable.

The local shelter currently has 60 cats and 20 dogs for adoption but more cats are being born and/or arriving every day so the issue may only get worse.

Auxier said the problem also extends to ferel cats, which even with spaying and neutering present a problem if allowed to roam free. He noted the only answer could be a more aggressive program for spaying and neutering or euthanasia.

"As soon as they hear we are putting them down, they don't want to hear that," said Janet Daughtery, animal control officer for the city of Madison.

"Even if ferel cats are spayed and neutered they still present a problem digging in flower beds, being around other pets and killing birds," Auxier said.

Tami Hagemier, another Humane Society member, said the reason the Humane Society is "shifting our resources" is because the cat population was allowed to get "out of control again."

Lindsay Stultz-Weyer, the animal shelter's new director, said she hopes to schedule more adoption events over the next few weeks. Nine dogs and 23 cats were adopted in November and with additional opportunities, more pets can be placed in homes. She also would like to expand the foster program to place more animals in pet-friendly homes until they can be adopted.

The board also discussed spaying and neutering animals at a much younger age — as young as eight to 14 weeks for cats in other to rein in overpopulation — since that practice is being followed at a number of animal shelters without significant complications.

No decision was made but the consensus was that the problem is a priority.

PARTNER

invested financially, assisted with equipment and been involved in creating the building where Cub Industries is located on the MCHS campus.

Roger Williams, president and chief executive officer (CEO) of Royer Corporation, was instrumental in the beginning of Cub Industries, along with Dave Ungru, president and CEO of Koehler Welding and Supply, who came to the school corporation with the idea after they had seen a model designed by Cardinal Manufacturing, a student-run enterprise at Eleva-Strum High School in Strum, Wisconsin, in which there is a machining operation.

"They brought the concept to the school and said this will be really cool to do," said Schutte. From there, in addition to Royer and Koehler, other Madison manufacturers got involved including Arvin Sango, SuperATV, Indiana-Kentucky Electric Corporation, Vehicle Service Group (VSG) and Madison Precision Products and all "have really invested in this program."

Schutte said students in the program learn all aspects of a typical manufacturing business by being responsible for daily operations including marketing, accounting, logistics, purchasing and production. She noted that takes students beyond theoretical learning in the classroom, and helps them to "understand what the real world is" to be better prepared for the workplace after they finish school.

Mathews said with the curriculum at MCHS students are "getting the education piece, but they're also getting the hands-on and the employability piece" as they learn specifics of what it means to be employed. "How to work on someone else's time is a huge concept that a lot of younger people don't understand," she said. "By doing things like giving them specific projects and hitting them with deadlines, that's a piece of accountability they don't get sometimes by just being in a class."

Mathews said there are students who are project managers, overseeing the floor workers to be sure they are working with the other student staff to ensure orders get completed and shipped back out. "We market over our orders. We make sure things are ran properly. And make sure our project is executed correctly," she said.

In the first year of production for Royer Manufacturing, Mathews said students will be offered a stipend, but the plan is to eventually transition toward providing the students with a dollar pay rate while they are in the building. Depending on the demand, that could lead to an after-school job or a summer job for students, noting the goal of Cub Industries is to have year-round production.

"We've really got a mini-corporation going," said Mathews, noting Perry Central's Commodore Manufacturing in southwestern Indiana is the nearest student-based enterprise. "This is an opportunity that students aren't necessarily going to get at surrounding schools."

But even beyond that, Mathews said, "Our number one goal is to be sure we're sending qualified kids out into the workforce," particularly for industries in Madison who are seeking good employees. "It's a way to give back to the organizations that have supported us."

Herrick has worked with the engineering students to set up the product designs in the laser software that were sent to Cub Industries by Royer. The Radian laser system has the capability of doing wood, acrylic, metal or leather and can engrave and customize for whatever a customer needs.

Chip Cox, a MCHS junior, said that setting up the design for products involves "a lot of problem solving" using trial and error in tweaking it until it's set up the way it needs to be. Adjustments must also be made, depending on what type of material is being used because the machine reacts differently to each type.

MCHS junior Avery Darnell said it also involves establishing different speeds, power, frequency and more that have to be adjusted according to what material is being used.

Mathews noted incorrect settings can create discoloration like an acrylic cake topper that was stained by smoke. On the other hand, a wood cake topper that was stained by smoke actually has "a really cool vintage look." She said both can be controlled by making modifications in the timing and speed of the machine to get the desired effect.

Cub Industries is preparing students for whatever lies ahead in their future as they sort out what they want to do with their careers.

"Even if you don't end up pursuing," Cox said, "you have that knowledge if you get a job in the future that involves something similar to it. It definitely provides more experience, and skills in technology."

Mathews said there are plans to continue expanding Cub Industries to provide even more benefits for MCHS students, even beginning with learning opportunities in junior high and by creating the program's own Etsy account to grow business and much more. "We're excited for what you'll see in a couple of years," she said.

Southwestern routs Batesville 68-52

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

It took two quarters for Southwestern to adjust to Batesville's zone defense. But once the Rebels did they were off to the races.

Southwestern outscored Batesville 17-5 in the third quarter and pulled away in the fourth for a 68-52 homecoming win on Saturday to remain unbeaten on the season.

The Rebels missed 16 of their 26 attempts from the floor in the first half while struggling to find a way around the long Bulldogs. But thanks to a few halftime adjustments, there were no such issues in the second half as Southwestern shot 61% (14-for-23) over that stretch and led by 21 at one point in the fourth quarter while pulling away.

"Batesville is very long and athletic and they gave us a lot of problems with that zone," Southwestern coach Zac Nussbaum said. "I feel like second half we kind of made some adjustments and they really took off."

Southwestern outscored Batesville 17-5 in the third quarter and pulled away in the fourth for a 68-52 homecoming win on Saturday to remain unbeaten on the season.

Southwestern, whose home game with New Washington on Friday was postponed to Jan. 25, led 13-11 after the first quarter but spent most of the second playing from behind. Batesville opened the quarter with three-straight 3-pointers by Sam Johnson, Thomas Raver and Cody Mohr to jump ahead 20-13, but the Rebels reeled them back in, ripping off a 16-6 run to regain the lead and led 30-29 at the break.

But it was in the third quarter where Southwestern took control. A 13-2 run, fueled by a 1-3-1 trap defense, pushed the Rebels out to a 43-31 lead and they never looked back. Southwestern led 47-34 at the quarter break and 59-38 midway through the fourth before settling in for the 16-point win.

"We switched to the 1-3-1 to try to take away the middle a little bit more than we were in the 2-3 and try to just put a little more pressure on their guards," Nussbaum said. "Obviously, we're giving up some baseline plays that we don't really like to give up but we were happy with our defense in the second half."

Batesville (0-4) hit only nine shots from the floor in the second half — most in the game's final three minutes — while shooting just 35% overall. The Bulldogs also turned the ball over 16 times.

Senior Parker Davis broke loose in the second half and scored 26 points to lead Southwestern but the real star was Zach Cole, who came very close to recording a triple-double. The senior do-everything forward scored 16 points on 6-of-10 shooting while grabbing nine rebounds and dishing out eight assists all while committing only two turnovers.

Colton Cloud added 11 points while Jamison Lewis scored just three points but pulled down 10 rebounds. Mitch Mingione added seven points for the Rebels.

Raver scored 23 points to lead Batesville while Cole Pride scored eight.

Southwestern, now 4-0 on the season, plays a pair of games this week but neither are on the weekend. The Rebels travel to Clarksville today, then host Jac-Cen-Del on Thursday in an Ohio River Valley Conference matchup.

Southwestern's Zach Cole (20) goes hard to the basket past Batesville's Cole Pride (21) during the Rebels' homecoming win Saturday in Hanover. Cole just did miss a triple double with 16 points, nine rebounds and eight assists.

Madison rallies to beat South Dearborn 47-41 for Stotts' 1st win

BY JORDAN BEAR

Madison handed head coach Adam Stotts his first career victory as the Cubs rallied to take down South Dearborn 47-41 on Friday in the team's home opener.

South Dearborn, which came into the game a perfect 3-0, was leading with under a minute to play, but Kaden Oliver's coast-to-vast layup and eventual three-point play pushed Madison ahead and the Cubs pulled away from there for the win.

It was an exciting win for Madison and a special night for its first-year coach.

"Every time I talk about it I get a little emotional," Stotts said. "I love these guys so much. I told them in the huddle with about a minute to go that I loved them and I told them they were going to do it. I was so happy that they stepped up and never backed down."

On Saturday, Madison battled 11th-ranked Brownstown to the wire before falling 60-54.

Friday's game could not have started better for the Cubs, who were on fire at both ends of the floor while grabbing a 13-2 lead after the first quarter. The second quarter was a different story; however, as the Knights came roaring back and outscored Madison 18-5 take a two-point lead at halftime.

Madison reclaimed the lead with a nice offensive third quarter and the fourth quarter was back and forth affair with both teams trading baskets. A 3-pointer by Eli Hoffman with one minute to go to gave South Dearborn a 41-40 lead. Oliver immediately answered with his layup and foul and the Cubs never looked back.

Oliver finished the night with a game-high 23 points and earned high praise from his head coach.

"One thing about him is he was so physically drained," Stotts said. "He actually had to step outside at halftime to try and clear his head and get some energy back. He walked to the wrong side of the floor because he was so physically drained but it shows the heart the kid has. He hates losing and he can put the team on his back when he has to."

In addition to Oliver, Jackson Falconberry chipped in 15 points for the Cubs while Jackson Lynch added five points. Hoffman led Dearborn with 17 points and Reese Willoughby scored 10.

Madison fought hard for all 32 minutes against the talented Braves on Saturday before falling 60-54.

Brownstown (4-0) led 14-6 after the first quarter but the Cubs roared back, getting big shots from Oliver and Lynch to take a 28-22 lead into the half.

The Braves responded to go pull 44-41 after three quarters and Brownstown held on over the final eight minutes for the win.

"I'm holding my head high which sounds weird after a loss but it's true," Stotts said. "That's a top 10 team in the state and we played right with them until the final buzzer. They're very talented, they have a high level Division I player on their team but our guys weren't scared and they played hard for every second of the game. We played very well, we just came up a little short."

Oliver once again led the Cubs, scoring 30 points while Falconberry and Lynch each had seven. Carter Waskom led Brownstown with 26 points, while Jack Benter, the son of Brownstown head coach Dave Benter and one of the best players in the state, had 23.

Madison is now 1-4 on the season and the Cubs have two games this weekend when they host Bedford North Lawrence on Friday and travel to Austin on Saturday.

"Those are two very winnable games. I don't want my guys to hang their heads after this loss, I want them to use it going forward," Stotts said. "I love where the team is defensively and Kaden is on fire on offense right now. Hopefully, we will have a good week of practice and be able to close the week with a couple of wins going into the JCIT."

Switzerland County's Bryce Wrightsman (11), Cam Craig (33) and Ben Hicks celebrate after the Pacers defeated Rising Sun on Friday in Vevay.

Switzerland holds on in 4th to beat Rising Sun 56-52

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Switzerland County got a big lift with the return of Ben Hicks to the lineup and held off Rising Sun 56-52 in a non-conference boys basketball win Friday in Vevay.

Hicks missed the first two weeks of the season due to COVID but marked his return to the lineup in style, scoring 14 points while teaming up with freshman scoring sensation Cam Craig to deliver the Pacers a victory in their first Ruler of The River contest of the season.

"It's good to have him back from the COVID protocols. He stepped up big and made some free throws and got some big buckets," Switzerland coach Travis Wrightsman said of Hicks. "Obviously, we have Cam who's come out and scored a lot of points this early season but with Ben coming back I think we got a pretty good balanced team and as we keep going hopefully we can keep winning."

Switzerland County never trailed in the game but it never had a comfortable lead either. The Pacers used a 3-pointer from Austin Bosaw and baskets from Bryce Turner and Hicks to close the first quarter on a rush and take an 18-8 lead.

The Pacers pushed that lead to 12 twice in the second quarter but could never deliver the knockout punch. Rising Sun eventually closed the gap to one (26-25) on a Peyton Merica 3-pointer, but Craig was fouled as the buzzer sounded and hit two free throws with no time on the clock to give Switzerland a three-point lead heading into the break.

Rising Sun (0-3) spent the rest of the game making runs at the Pacers but the Shiners simply could not break through. Each time they got close enough to challenge for the lead, Switzerland would rally to keep them at bay.

"We always had at least a two or three-point lead so we always had the scoreboard in our favor," Wrightsman said.

Switzerland pushed the lead back to 11 (40-29) by the end of the third but Rising Sun again came back, closing the margin to 51-48 with 1:10 to go. Craig answered that run with a huge 3-pointer with 55 seconds to go and Hicks added two free throws in the final 11 seconds to allow the Pacers to hold on for the win.

Craig finished with 18 points to go along with Hicks' 14 while Bryce Wrightsman and Turner scored seven points each. Brady Works scored 17 points, Merica had 15 and Damon Carrigan added 12 to lead Rising Sun.

"We had some mental mistakes, but we figured out what we needed to do out there at the end the game to win the game," Coach Wrightsman said. "We've got a young team still so we're still learning. Give credit to Rising Sun, they put a lot of pressure on us and at times we didn't take care of the ball. But we did just enough to win the game and that's what's important."

On Saturday, host Lawrenceburg used a big second quarter to hold off Switzerland County 60-51.

Lawrenceburg led 14-11 after the first quarter then outscored the Pacers 19-8 in the second to take a 33-19 lead into the break. Switzerland chipped away in the second half, closing the gap to 44-35 by the end of the third but couldn't get any closer.

Craig scored 28 points on 9-of-19 shooting and had 12 rebounds while Wrightsman had 13 points . Jacob Williams scored seven points and Hicks added three.

Switzerland, now 3-2 on the season, hosts Hauser on Saturday.

Hanover swept by Defiance in basketball

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Jordan Marrell's jump shot as time expired lifted Defiance to a 74-73 men's basketball win over Hanover in the Panthers' first loss of the season on Saturday in Defiance.

Hanover had battled back from a 13-point (62-49) deficit with 12:54 to play to take the lead on an Isaac Hibbard jumper with 1:26 left. After a basket by the Yellow Jackets, a pair of Matt Munoz free throws with 10 seconds left gave Hanover a 73-72 lead. But Marrell's driving basket denied the comeback.

Katherine Benter had 22 points and 11 rebounds for the Panthers while Heath scored 13 points and had five rebounds.

Hanover, now 4-3 overall and 1-1 in the HCAC, hosts Rose-Hulman on Wednesday.

THE NEWS-DEMOCRAT

Carroll County rallied to outscore Trimble County 16-1 in the fourth quarter and pull out a 49-42 girls basketball win Friday at home.

The Panthers led 16-12 after the first quarter but Trimble flipped the script in the second, going ahead 29-26 at the halftime break. The Raiders then seemingly took control in the third quarter, outscoring Carroll 12-7 to push ahead 41-33 after three quarters.

But Trimble managed only a Jolie Wilcoxson free throw over the final eight minutes as Carroll County went to work on both defense and offense. Madie Hicks and Bailee Matthews each hit 3-pointers, Grace Perkins and Katie Hensley each made a pair of free throws as the Panthers pulled ahead and eventually pulled away for their first win of the season.

Hicks scored 13 points to lead Carroll while Courtney Strickland had 11 points, Hensley scored eight and Perkins added six points.

Indiana gallops away from Merrimack in 2nd half 81-49

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Trayce Jackson-Davis scored 16 points and Race Thompson added 14 on 6-for-6 shooting as Indiana broke away from Merrimack 81-49 on Sunday, remaining unbeaten in eight games at Simon Skjodt Assembly Hall.

Jackson-Davis added nine rebounds and blocked three shots, punctuating a 13-0 breakaway run by Indiana (8-2) with a fastbreak layup off a block and then an alley-oop dunk on a feed from Rob Phinisee.

Merrimack (4-8), which was coming off a loss at No. 5 Gonzaga, had stayed close to the Hoosiers early, trailing 36-30 at halftime when Jordan Minor had a tipin at the buzzer. But the Warriors, transitioning to the Division I level, were forced away from the basket in the second half, making five of their first 17 shots, all from beyond the 3-point arc.

Indiana dominated inside, owning the glass 54-16. Jordan Geronimo had 13 points with 13 rebounds for his first career double-double.

Minor scored 13 to lead Merrimack with Ziggy Reid and Malik Edmead each adding 11. The Warriors were 6-for-25 shooting in the second half, scoring just 19 points. Merrimack had 10 steals — Edmead, Minor, Reid and Mykel Derring with two each — but scored just seven points off 17 Indiana turnovers.

The Hoosiers picked up 17 points off 10 Merrimack turnovers.

The Hoosiers play Notre Dame as part of the Crossroads Classic on Saturday n Indianapolis (TV: Live on FOX at 2:30 p.m.).

Williams, No. 1 Purdue rally past NC State 82-72 in OT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Trevion Williams had a season-high 22 points to go with 12 rebounds and a career-best nine assists to help No. 1 Purdue beat North Carolina State 82-72 in overtime Sunday in the Basketball Hall of Fame Invitational.

Jaden Ivey added 22 points for the Boilermakers (9-1), who had to rally from 13 down midway through the second half to win this one. And Purdue never led in regulation, taking its first lead Sasha Stefanovic's 3-pointer 15 seconds into the extra period.

"You're not pleased with the position that you're in," Purdue coach Matt Painter said, "but you're pleased about being able to dig yourself out of a hole."

Stefanovic also hit a driving layup with 21.5 seconds left to force the overtime, ultimately helping Purdue bounce back from a last-second loss at Rutgers in the program's first-ever week atop The Associated Press men's college basketball poll.

Freshman Terquavion Smith scored a season-high 21 points for the Wolfpack (7-3), who had a prime chance to earn the program's first win against a top-ranked opponent in nearly nine years.

Dereon Seabron added 18 points, including a driving basket over Williams that pushed N.C. State to a 66-64 lead with 31.7 seconds left in regulation — only to see Stefanovic answer with the OT-forcing basket.

The Wolfpack shot just 3 for 10 in overtime as Purdue pushed ahead. That included Ivey blocking a driving shot by Seabron in OT with replays showing the ball had first hit the backboard for what should have been a goaltending call.

The frustration built for the Wolfpack until coach Kevin Keatts picked up a technical foul with 43.2 seconds left and the Boilermakers on their way to a win.

"It was a heck of a battle all the way to the end," Keatts said. "And the message to our guys was,

Wesley's late shot lifts Notre Dame over No. 10 Kentucky

BY ANTHONY ANDERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOUTH BEND — Freshman and hometown hero Blake Wesley's driving pull-up jumper in the lane with 11.7 seconds to go put Notre Dame ahead as the Irish stunned No. 10 Kentucky 66-62 on Saturday.

Dane Goodwin added a dunk as time expired and fans stormed the Purcell Pavilion court.

Wesley — the first South Bend public high school student to sign at Notre Dame in 36 years — was among those mobbed after hitting the winner in his first collegiate home start.

"It gave me chills when he was introduced as from South Bend," Irish coach Mike Brey said.

Those chills grew.

"He's really special," Brey said of the 6-foot-5 guard, already averaging 13.0 points to rank second for the Irish. "You start him on a road league (game in ND's last outing, at Boston College, Wesley's first career start). I don't even know if that's fair. Is that child abuse?

"And then he's playing against old guys tonight," Brey said. "He's a puppy compared to some of the guys he's playing against, but there's a special uniqueness about him."

Notre Dame (4-4) ended a three-game losing skid in its first matchup of the season against a ranked team, while also halting the Wildcats' (7-2) seven-game winning streak.

Wesley and Goodwin scored 14 points each for the Irish, who erased a 53-48 Kentucky lead at the 8:07 mark with an 11-1 spurt, then scored the game's final five points over the closing 1:31.

Trey Wertz added 12 points and Paul Atkinson 10 for the Irish.

The Wildcats' Oscar Tshiebwe led all players with 25 points. He was 11 of 14 from the field to go with seven rebounds and game highs of three steals and two blocks.

Fort Wayne native Keion Brooks added 12 points and seven rebounds in his first game back in his home state.

"Let's hope it's a fluke," Kentucky coach John Calipari said of his team missing 17 of 19 shots outside the arc, while ND was going 7 of 22 from long distance.

Calipari, though, said the loss was more about defensive breakdowns over the final eight minutes, and he rattled off several examples.

"When you're shooting 2 of 19, you can't afford to do that, too," Calipari said, "and that's what happened."

Garoppolo throws 12-yard TD as 49ers beat Bengals in OT

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — The San Francisco 49ers took what the Bengals gave them and stayed in the playoff race.

Mistake-prone Cincinnati, however, made its path to the postseason more difficult.

Jimmy Garoppolo threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Brandon Aiyuk and the 49ers beat Cincinnati 26-23 in overtime Sunday. Garoppolo completed five passes in the overtime drive, including a pair to tight end George Kittle, who was again San Francisco's offensive star.

"They made some amazing plays, George Kittle with some big catches," Bengals defensive end Sam Hubbard said. "We felt like we were going to win that game."

On the final play, Aiyuk dived to the pylon and was initially ruled short, but a replay gave him the touchdown and San Francisco (7-6) a critical win.

"I looked at the ref and he seemed pretty sure I was not in," Aiyuk said. "A lot of challenges hadn't been going my way the last couple of weeks, so I was a little bit nervous. When I saw the replay, I knew I was in."

Evan McPherson hit a 41-yard field goal on the opening possession of overtime to give the Bengals (7-6) a brief lead, their first of the day.

San Francisco's Robbie Gould missed a 47-yard field goal with 4 seconds left in regulation that would have won it.

That came after Cincinnati quarterback Joe Burrow found Ja'Marr Chase for two fourth-quarter touchdowns — the first on fourth-and-5 from the Niners' 17 — to claw back from a 20-6 deficit and tie the game with 1:19 left.

Deebo Samuel rushed for another score for San Francisco.

The Bengals had trouble getting out of their own way in the first half and lost their second straight, squandering a chance to take advantage of losses by AFC North foes Baltimore and Pittsburgh this week.

49ERS

Two fumbled punts by Cincinnati returner Darius Phillips led to 10 first-half points for the 49ers. A taunting call against Bengals safety Vonn Bell extended the second of those Niners drives, which ended in a 14-yard TD pass from Garoppolo to Kittle that gave San Francisco a 17-6 halftime lead.

"Can't beat yourself," Hubbard said. "Can't make the mistakes we have been making the last few weeks and win games."

Garoppolo was 27 for 41 for 296 yards and two touchdowns. Burrow was 25 for 34 for 348 yards and two touchdowns. He was sacked five times after going down a season-high six times in the 41-22 loss to the Chargers on Dec. 5.

Cincinnati's Tee Higgins had five catches for 114 yards. Chase had five for 77 yards and the two late TDs.

The 49ers currently are the sixth seed in the NFC race, and the Bengals dropped to the ninth seed behind the Browns, who beat the Ravens on Sunday.

"If we just keep winning, we don't have to look at anybody else," San Francisco coach Kyle Shanahan said.

KITTLE KEEPS GOING

Kittle had 13 catches for 151 yards and a TD. That came after a great individual performance a week ago, when he caught nine passes for 181 yards and two touchdowns in a 30-23 loss to Seattle. That was the first multi-touchdown game of his career. He has six TDs in his last six games.

"We tried everything," Bengals coach Zac Taylor said. "He's one of the best tight ends, we knew that. I promise you, we tried like hell to stop him."

Said Garoppolo: "George showed up today."

UP AND DOWN

San Francisco managed to string together three straight wins last month before losing to Seattle on Dec. 5, and then turned around to beat the Bengals. Cincinnati hasn't been able to win more than two in a row this season and has lost the last two.

NOTABLE

San Francisco defensive end Nick Bosa had two sacks of his LSU buddy Burrow, giving him a career-high 14 for the season for 114 yards. ... Bengals running back Joe Mixon went over 1,000 rushing yards for the season, and Chase eclipsed 1,000 receiving yards. ... Burrow said he had about 85% velocity with a sore pinky finger on his throwing hand that he had dislocated a week ago.

PURDUE

'Hey, you're playing the No. 1 team in the country and you're fighting all the way to the end.' We had our chances, but we can play with anyone in the country."

BIG PICTURE

Purdue: The Boilermakers' first ever stay at No. 1 in the AP Top 25 was likely to be short even before Sunday after losing on a near-midcourt shot at Rutgers. They flirted with a second loss with that top ranking in four days before shooting 58.1% after halftime to finally wrestle control away of this one, improving to 3-0 against Atlantic Coast Conference opponents.

N.C. State: The Wolfpack entered this game just 6-28 against No. 1-ranked teams in the AP poll, with most of those meetings coming against instate neighbors Duke or North Carolina in the ACC. The program's last win against a top-ranked team remains an 84-76 home win against the Blue Devils in January 2013.

UP NEXT

The Boilermakers meet Butler in Indianapolis on Saturday in the Crossroads Classic (TV: Live on FOX at noon).
